Local History News

Conference: This year's Local History Conference will take place on 21 November, at the City of London School for Girls. The topic will be London's Open Spaces, but the final title and contents have still to be decided. Tickets will be £8 for members of LAMAS and £10 for others, but Affiliated Societies will be able to send two delegates at the reduced price, as before.

Workshops: The Local History Committee is considering setting up occasional workshops (on topics such as Enclosures, Hearth Tax, etc.) where delegates from Local History Societies doing research on such topics could benefit either from comparison with other areas, or where a unified approach to the methods used would improve the final results.

Any members of Affiliated Local History Societies interested in such a workshop are asked to contact the Secretary, Ann Hignell, whose details are given below.

Publications Award: Members of Affiliated Societies are reminded that the closing date for submissions for the 2009 Award for publications on a Local History topic is 31 May. The prize will be £100. To be eligible the book or pamphlet should be a stand-alone item: it can be large or small, but must show original research and add to the general knowledge of Greater London. It can be either published by an Affiliated Local History Society, or self-published by a member or members of that Society, between January 2008 and January 2009. The LAMAS Local History Committee received an impressive selection of entries for last year's Award, and hope that similar submissions will be received this time. An application form has been issued to all Affiliated Societies, but additional copies and further information can be obtained from the Committee Secretary:

Ann Hignell, Sec. LAMAS Local History Committee, 24 Orchard Close, Ruislip, Middx. HA4 7LS, or at annhignell@waitrose.com

Important Announcement: LAMAS Research Fund

The Research Fund is a modest sum granted annually to support research into the archaeology and history of London and Middlesex. We would now like to invite applications for the 2009/2010 fund.

How much will the fund be and who can apply?

The fund level for the year 2009/2010 has been set by Council at £5000. Applications are invited for all or part of this sum. The fund is open to all full individual members of the Society.

What can the fund be used for?

The fund can be used to support specific projects of almost any type, which relate to the core objectives of the Society as set out in our Constitution. Archaeological applications must also fit within the Research Agenda for London (REF), and show that the research is not that which should have been funded through other means, particularly through development control conditions (such as are applied through PPG16), or as part of a previously agreed Scheduled Ancient Monument Consent, for example. For historical research projects, favour will be given to those projects focused on landscapes, districts, monuments, or buildings over biographical or other approaches. Specific educational fieldwork projects may also be supported (such as a Young Archaeologist's Club, or National Archaeology Days).

How does one apply?

Applicants will need to write a Project Design to set out the following:

- Succinct and clear summary of the work – what it is going to achieve and why it is important? (project objectives)
- Statement of how it meets the Constitutional criteria (and for archaeology, the Research Agenda) (project context)
- Who is going to do the work and when (project team and timetable)
- What tasks the work entails (a method statement)
- What we can expect the report to contain in terms of text, illustrations and figures, including an estimate of word count (synopsis)
- How much is being asked for and how it is being allocated (project costings)

Applications must be received by Council by no later than 30 September each year. Decisions will be made during October, and successful applicants notified by letter on or around 1 November (Council will notify all applicants of their success or failure, and give general reasons. Council's decision is final). The work must be undertaken and completed within 10 months and submitted to be received by Council by 31 August of the following year. The project submissions will be appraised by Council in the September of each year, and, assuming the work is of the expected form and quality, cheques issued to cover the grant on agreement of sign-off.

Full details can be found on our website: www.lamas.org.uk or from Jackie Keily (jkeily@museumoflondon.org.uk; tel. 020 7814 5734).

SCOLA

At the AGM of SCOLA on Monday 16 March, the following motion was put to the members present: That the Standing Conference on London Archaeology be dissolved. After the satisfaction of any proper debts and liabilities £1,000 should be given to the London Archaeologist to enable the Publications Prize to continue; £2,500 should be given to the City of London Archaeological Trust; and the remainder of the Standing Conference's assets should be transferred to the London Group of the Council for British Archaeology. The existing officers and Committee should continue in order to carry out this resolution and should then disband.

The motion was passed on a show of hands, with one abstention. As directed, the officers are now finalising the accounts and approaching the Charity Commissioners to complete the formalities of dissolution. One final meeting of the Committee is planned for mid-April to approve the officers' actions. Following payment of a number of outstanding sums, it is likely that there will be about £6400 remaining in SCOLA's reserves - on the basis of the AGM resolution, just under £3000 of this would be allocated to CBA London. James Doeser (CBA London's Secretary) was asked what other funding had been promised for CBA London. He reported that this now includes £5000 from CBA itself (for one year) and £3500 from the Society of Antiquaries.

On the conclusion of the business of the AGM Dennis Turner gave a talk about the history of SCOLA from its inception to the present, including valuable advice as well as warnings for the new CBA group!

The Thames Discovery Programme

Building on initiatives pioneered by the Museum of London's Thames Archaeological Survey (1995-99) and the Thames Explorer Trust's innovative education projects, the Thames Discovery Programme aims to communicate an understanding and informed enjoyment of the historic Thames to the widest possible audience. This ambitious project is hosted by the Thames Estuary Partnership, in the University College London Environment Institute, and the Thames Explorer Trust with generous support from the Heritage Lottery Fund. Other partners include the Museum of London, English Heritage and the UCL Institute of Archaeology.

Over the next three years, archaeologists from the programme will survey 20 archaeological sites along the tidal Thames. This will be supported by the work of the Foreshore Recording and Observation Groups (FROG), who will monitor the surveyed sites for changes, as the daily tides scour away the remaining archaeological features. The FROG will be made up of volunteer members of the public, who will be trained in foreshore recording techniques, health and safety and digital recording by the TDP team.

We are running a regular programme of FREE training events for anyone interested in joining the Thames Discovery Programme as a FROG member, interested in getting involved in background research, joining in with our public events or just to find out more about the Programme. More detailed information can be found on our comprehensive project website www.thamesdiscovery.org

We run the FROG training events on a three-monthly cycle, with an introductory evening, followed by a classroom-based Day 1 training event and a foreshore-based Day 2 training event, around a month after the Day 1 training. You can find out more about how to sign up for the events at the next introductory evening on 1 May (from 6 to 8pm), at LAARC, Mortimer Wheeler House, 48 Eagle Wharf Road London N1 7ED. If you would like the team to give an introductory talk to a group or society, please get in touch with us at enquires@thamesdiscovery.org. All the Thames Discovery Programme events are suitable for anyone over the age of 18.

The Thames Discovery Programme is a great opportunity for members of the public to get involved in one of the most exciting archaeology projects in London. Our outreach work will also involve school groups, student research projects, opportunities for work experience, displays, exhibitions, lectures, site visits and an annual conference.

Are London's Conservation Areas 'At Risk'?

English Heritage is launching a national survey of Conservation Areas. London has approximately 955 Conservation Areas – details are held by councils and can usually be found on their websites.

English Heritage has asked every Local Authority in the country to fill in a questionnaire for each of their Conservation Areas as part of the first nationwide census of their condition. The results will be announced and a campaign will be launched on 23 June to help councils, communities and individual residents to care for these special places.

Conservation Areas identified as at risk will be added to the Heritage at Risk register, published annually by English Heritage. The register helps everyone to prioritise action, direct resources to areas of need and focus attention on saving the best of the past for the future. Eventually it will make England the first country in the world to have a comprehensive picture of its heritage at risk and the necessary understanding to save it.

Many Conservation Areas have local amenity societies or residents' groups which perform a valuable role in protecting the special character of the place where they live for everyone's benefit. English Heritage wants to hear about major successes and might feature your local amenity society in their campaign booklet and on their website. To receive information on the Conservation Areas at Risk campaign, please visit www.english-heritage.org.uk/conservationareas

London Archaeologist* Back Issues Now Online

The archive of the London Archaeologist is now accessible online through the Archaeology Data Service:

http://ads.ahds.ac.uk/catalogue/library/london\_arch/

It consists of all the articles that have appeared in the periodical between 1968 and 2005 (volumes 1 to 10). Published by the London Archaeologist Association since 1968, the periodical covers every significant archaeological discovery in the capital, including excavation reports, finds studies, environmental reports, exhibition and book reviews, news and commentary. More recent volumes can be obtained from the London Archaeologist website (<http://www.londonarchaeologist.org.uk/>).

MINUTES

Minutes of the LAMAS Annual General Meeting Terrace Room, Museum of London, 19 February 2009

On platform: President: Prof Caroline Barron (CB), Chairman: Eileen Bowlt (EB), Hon Treasurer: Martin Williams, Meriel Jeater (MJ) (Acting Secretary, taking minutes)

Approximately 45 members attended

1. Apologies: Hon Secretary: Jackie Keily, June Stubbs, Ann Hignell, Laura Schaaf

2. Minutes of 152nd AGM 20 February 2008: Cecil Cherns proposed that the minutes of the previous AGM were accepted; seconded by Brian Warren. The minutes were confirmed and signed as a correct record.

3. Annual Report and Accounts: EB thanked Jackie Keily for producing the annual report, and thanked members of Council, including the President, members of the committees, the Transactions editor and the Newsletter editor, for all their hard work on behalf of the Society.

The 153rd Annual Report was circulated to members. EB summarised the main points. The lecture series had continued to be held in the Terrace Room at the Museum of London. Cheryl Smith had organised a very varied and enjoyable series of lectures. The joint lecture with Natural History Society had been very successful and it was hoped that this would continue.

Membership stood at 658, with 45 unpaid. EB encouraged members to get friends and colleagues to join. The benefits included lectures, Transactions and the two annual conferences.

Kate Sumnall
Roy Stephenson
Nathalie Cohen (Hon. Archaeology
Editor)

Laura Schaaf
Kathryn Stubbs

The following members were proposed for election to Council (proposed by Council; seconded by Colin Bowlt) and unanimously elected:

Hedley Swain                      Jane Sidell                      Don Cooper

Ann Hignell continues to represent the Local History Committee on Council.

5. Appointment of Auditor(s): Council proposed Mr Stuart Forbes as the Honorary Examiner; seconded by Graham Javes. No other nominations were received. Mr Forbes was unanimously elected.

6. Any other business: Nick Holder asked for LAMAS views on the CBA London/London Archaeologist link up. EB asked John Clark to comment. JC spoke as LAMAS representative on SCOLA. SCOLA is voting in March on whether to wind up and pass the baton to CBA London. Don Cooper, Chair of CBA London, is now on LAMAS Council. SCOLA has come up with a programme for winding up and deciding what to do with its remaining funds. It would like the SCOLA archaeological publications prize to continue and it is hoped that CBA London will undertake this. The CBA Chair and Secretary went to the previous LAMAS Archaeology Committee meeting and it is hoped that a memorandum of understanding will be produced between the two organisations, and possibly also plans for joint future work and events. The joint membership offer for CBA London and London Archaeologist has encouraged new LA subscribers.

Don Cooper reported that CBA London is very keen to have a good relationship with LAMAS.

CB emphasised that LAMAS has the added attraction of being about both history and archaeology. CB then thanked Nick Holder for his question and declared the meeting closed.

CB then gave a fascinating first Presidential address, 'Surviving the Reformation in London: the case of Thomas Salter'

REVIEW

LAMAS 46th Conference of London Archaeologists held at Museum of London Docklands, 14 March 2009

The conference opened with the presentation of the Ralph Merrifield Award to Chaz Morse and Lorna Richardson of LP Archaeology for the web-based public outreach programme that accompanied the Prescott Street excavation. For details see either <http://www.lpparchaeology/prescot> or the London Archaeologist 2008 Vol. 12, No. 2.

Appropriately Chaz Morse was the first speaker on the Prescott Street excavation at Aldgate, within the east London Roman cemetery. There were a number of inhumation burials and one unusual chest cremation, which contained three glass vessels including a plate. There was also a burial placed on a tile and stone platform, a very unusual practice. During the 15th century a huge gravel pit was dug across the site. The backfill of this pit contained a vast amount of well-preserved leather shoes.

Next Derek Renn on behalf of LAMAS recounted his ongoing quest to publish the late John Kent's 1960-67 excavations at South Mimms Castle, Hertfordshire. The earthworks of this 12th-century motte and bailey castle still remain intact, so further fieldwork is a possibility. It is believed that this castle possessed a keep that was entered via a passageway at basement level.

The Romans in Brentford was the theme of Bob Cowie's (MOLA) lecture. During 2004-08 at Syon Park elements of a rural roadside settlement including its ditched fields were uncovered.

Sophie Jackson (MOLA) gave a whirlwind tour of work in the City of London and beyond. A length of the 3rd-century AD Roman riverside wall was revealed at Riverbank House, Swan Lane, a site previously redeveloped in 1981. Finds from the site included a spectacular 14th-century lead openwork devotional panel depicting the life of the semi-official St Thomas of Lancaster. At Cannon Street station a series of small trenches on the site of the monumental Roman palace confirmed the western extension of various features recorded during the 1960s development of the station. Bucklersbury House, the site of the 1954 discovery of the Temple of Mithras was evaluated revealing that parts of the temple foundations remain intact. However, more importantly this proposed development is a wonderful opportunity to examine the unexcavated temple portico along the site's eastern boundary. At 20 Fenchurch Street a late Roman masonry cellared building was found and more of the Neronian fort was discovered nearby at Plantation Place. Excavations at Crosby Square, formerly the site of the 15th-century mansion known as 'Crosby Place' (dismantled in 1909 and rebuilt in Chelsea), have revealed elements of the cellars of this mansion, plus a Roman D-shaped plunge bath. Work at Mariner House found elements of the church of the Crutched or Crossed Friars (est. c 1265). At Tower House a forgotten length of the Roman city wall was uncovered. At 4 Bankside in Southwark a revetted ditch and various brick-lined cesspits revealed masses of 16th- and 17th-century finds including a bowling ball. Work at 10-14 Upper St Martin's Lane has revealed more evidence of Middle Saxon 'Lundenwic'. Excavations at 150 High Street Stratford found the imposing brick foundations of an 18th- and 19th-century tidal mill. A community archaeology project at Baker's Row, Stratford revealed part of the guesthouse or gatehouse of the Cistercian Abbey of Stratford Langthorne (1135-1538).

Simon Davis (MOLA) described the discovery of a medieval tidal mill on Greenwich peninsula (tree-ring dated to 1194). The foundations of this timber-framed building and its drive wheel were remarkably well preserved due to a build-up of fluvial sediments. The drive wheel would have possessed an estimated 60 paddles.

The afternoon session started with David Fellows (English Heritage) talking about the Chiswick House gardens regeneration project. This Palladian villa was constructed in the 1720s, next to a Jacobean mansion, which was demolished during the late 18th century, when the villa was extended. Work on the site of the new marquee and café has revealed elements of the Jacobean house (see Current Archaeology No. 223).

Emma Dwyer (MOLA) described recording iconic buildings, which makes you reconsider your definition of modern heritage. The 1936 Sports Pavilion on East Hackney Marshes (rebuilt 1953) was a very unassuming complex of buildings, but the history behind their construction and the struggle to preserve this area of open space for public usage was fascinating. However, this struggle has now been lost as the area is going to be redeveloped as a coach park for the 2012 Olympics. In complete contrast was the history of the Astoria Theatre, Charing Cross Road, which started life in 1893 as a warehouse; in 1927 it became a cinema and ballroom and in 1968 was converted into a theatre.

Julian Bowsher (MOLA), a principal author of the forthcoming volume on London's playhouses, summarised the results of his research. The most recent discovery has been part of the brick foundations of a playhouse simply known as 'the Theatre' at Shoreditch, which was demolished in 1598 (see Current Archaeology No. 225). This discovery had already inspired proposals for the construction of two replicas (Times 7/3/09, pg 32) and a visit from Sir Ian McKellan (Times 20/3/09, pg 26).

Ben Ford (Oxford Archaeology) described the excavations within the inner courtyard at Hampton Court Palace, where elements of the moated manor or 'camera' (est. c 1160) belonging to the Knights Hospitaller were found. Structures examined included a large aisled hall or barn of late 13th- or 14th-century date. Evidence of fire damage may relate to the documented damage during 1353.

John Schofield described how his ongoing research on the archaeology of the pre-Great Fire St Paul's Cathedral has allowed the compilation of a new plan of the Norman Cathedral (est. 1087) (see London Archaeologist 2008/9 Vol. 12, No. 3). This imposing building had a Latin cross ground plan. The cathedral choir was extended eastwards during 1259-1314. In 1332 a cloister and chapter house was added to its southern side and in 1440 a second cloister was added to its northern side. During 1632-42 a portico was added to the western end of the cathedral.

BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS

Reappraisal of the Battle of Barnet, by B. Warren (2009). Potters Bar Historical Society. 44pp. 1 illustration. 20 maps. Price £2 plus £1 p&p. Available from Mrs Mabel Hammett, 4 Heath Cottages, Heath Road, Potters Bar EN6 1LS

The battle, fought in the vicinity of Barnet on 14 April 1471 between Edward IV and Richard Neville, Earl of Warwick, has provided historians with grounds for speculation about the exact position and layout of the field for centuries. Many questions remain unanswered. Why has a relatively small area, trampled by some 24,000 fighting men (the number is conjectural) and where some 3000 are thought to have died, thrown up so little in the way of skulls, bones, armour and weapons? Where exactly did the chapel stand that early sources say was erected for masses and prayers to be offered for the repose of the souls of the dead?

Brian Warren has lived near the site for over 60 years and has examined an impressive array of documents, maps of all periods and the changing geology of the area, part of which was taken into the Wrotham Park estate, created by Admiral Byng from 1750. Another portion became farmland after Enfield Chase was enclosed in 1777. He suggests that many artefacts could have been lost during the enclosure. He concludes that the battle was fought north of the generally accepted position on Hadley Green. Read the book to find out his reasoning.

CONFERENCES AND COURSES

Bexley Archaeological Group Training Days and Excavation

9 May 2009

Artefact Illustration Workshop, Jane Russell (10am – 4.30pm)

3 – 7 August 2009

Training excavation

Novice excavators from members and outside the Group are welcome to join the BAG Annual Training Excavation Week at their ongoing site in Bexley, Kent. The minimum age for participants is 16 (with parents' consent). All excavators will have the opportunity to experience the main tasks associated with an excavation under the supervision and guidance of the Field Officers from the Field Unit of Bexley Archaeological Group. Tasks carried out include trowelling, finds processing, surveying, drawing and field-walking. Fees: £80 for 5 days for non-members. This includes annual membership to Bexley Archaeological Group, insurance, Certificate of Attendance and admin.

For further information on the workshop or the excavation, please contact Pip Pulfer (07961 963893) pipspad@hotmail.co.uk (for the workshop) or pips-pad@tiscali.co.uk (for the excavation).

Copped Hall Trust Archaeological Project:

Dig and Field School

10 – 14 August & 17 – 21 August 2009

The Copped Hall Trust Archaeological Project (CHTAP) was set up, with the support of the West Essex Archaeological Group (WEAG), to investigate the remains of a Tudor grand-house. In previous seasons an intriguing sequence of brick walls and foundations overlain by the landscaped gardens of the 18th-century house has been uncovered. The excavations will continue in 2009.

The 5-day Training Dig, for beginners only, will be held in the week starting Monday 10 August. Participants will learn about: tools and their use; excavation methods; archaeological surveying; written and drawn recording; finds and finds processing. Talks will be given on related subjects but most of the instruction will be 'hands on' and in the context of actual excavation. A special bonus is the architect's tour of the 18th-century mansion, which is currently being restored.

The 5-day Field School, for people already familiar with the basic techniques of archaeological excavation and recording, will start on Monday 17 August. A small number of places may be available for those who have attended the first week's training dig but priority will be given to more experienced diggers who are keen to develop their existing skills under expert supervision, and those returning to Copped

Hall from previous years' digs. No formal teaching sessions are planned for this week, but for those interested there are likely to be opportunities to take part in a geophysical survey, photographic recording and environmental archaeology.

Attendance certificates will be awarded at the end of the course. Costs will be £140 for the training dig week (WEAG members £130); £90 for the field school week (WEAG £80). Tea/coffee/water will be provided, as will all tools except a digging trowel, but you will need to bring your own packed lunch.

If you wish to come, please fill in the form available online (www.weag.org.uk) and return it to Mrs Pauline Dalton, Roseleigh, Epping Road, Epping, Essex, CM16 5HW. For further information about the project see www.coppedhalltrust.org.uk or www.weag.org.uk, phone Mrs Dalton on 01992 813725, or email pmd2@ukonline.co.uk.

Museum of London Docklands
Gresham College Conference:
The Tudor Port of London
16 May 2009, 10am – 5pm

2009 marks the centenary of the Port of London Authority (PLA) and the 450th anniversary of the Elizabethan Port Reforms that established the shape of working London's harbour until the 19th century. This conference presents an overview of the Tudor Port, the success of which depended on men like Thomas Gresham. The papers will provide an archaeological focus on the harbour, its building, its shipping and the evidence for traffic trade. There will also be an opportunity to see a new display concerning the remains of an armed Elizabethan merchantman, the 'Gresham Ship', discovered in the Thames in 2003.

Admission is free by advance ticket only, booked from Gresham College by telephone (020 7831 0575) or email: enquiries@gresham.ac.uk.

Friends of Kensal Green Cemetery
Kensal Green Cemetery Open Day
4 July 2009, 11am – 5pm

Principal events typically include: cemetery tours with a general introduction to Kensal Green; catacomb tours of the vaults beneath the Anglican Chapel; specialist tours; Friends' bookstall at the Anglican Chapel; children's face painting and dress-up with costumes for Victorian Mutes and Mourners; display and motorcade of classic hearses from the Classic Hearse Register; displays and stalls from other cemetery societies, local history groups and specialists in services of particular interest to the friends of historical cemeteries.

Tour tickets are sold on the day at the booth on the porch of the Anglican Chapel; early booking is strongly advised as tours usually sell out by early afternoon. Cemetery tours cost £3 per head, start at the steps of the Anglican Chapel, and last about an hour; catacomb tours cost £2 per head, start at the door of the Anglican Chapel, and last about 30 minutes. Please note that cemetery tours are suitable for all ages, but children under the age of 12 are not allowed in the catacomb. For more information see the FKGC website: <http://www.kensalgreen.co.uk/>

Museum of London
Festival of British Archaeology
18 July – 2 August 2009

The Museum of London and Museum of London Docklands will be holding a series of adult and family events, for the Festival of British Archaeology, called 'Thames treasures: London's river revealed', looking at the Thames and its archaeology and history.

Lectures, curator tours and foreshore walks will take place over the first two weeks of the festival, leading up to a weekend of family events at both museums on 1 and 2 August.

At Museum of London Docklands, visitors will be shown how to build a coracle (small boats made from animal hide) and a wooden paddle using ancient techniques. In addition, you can make a nautically-themed Roman lamp or construct a miniature boat to race in the Mudlarks' Gallery! For younger children there will be story-telling sessions about London Bridge and an under-5s activity looking at journeys by boat. There will be an opportunity to explore the Port of London Authority Archive and meet other organisations connected to the river, such as the Thames Discovery Programme and the River Police.

At the Museum of London, members of the Thames and Field Club will be showing some of the many objects they have found on the Thames foreshore, the Museum's conservators will explain how materials such as leather and wood are so well preserved by the river, and there will be object handling sessions of Thames finds from the London Archaeological Archive and Research Centre (LAARC). Osteologists will reveal some of the fascinating skeletal remains from the river, including prehistoric skulls showing evidence of injuries from weapons. The team behind London Archaeologist magazine will be talking about the exciting finds they have published over the years, many of which are on display in the Museum. Children can listen to tales of Hindu discoveries from the river or the life of Tamsibuga, an Iron Age woman from the Thames valley. At both museums, members of the Thames Discovery Programme will be explaining their work to record the fragile archaeology of the Thames and giving visitors the chance to identify objects found on the foreshore.

Further details of all these events will be posted on the Museum of London website: www.museumoflondon.org.uk. Call the Booking Office for more information: 020 7001 9844.
